Your tour

While cycling through Andalusia, you will encounter a fascinating region in the south of Spain that has been shaped by countless cultures over the centuries. Here, the ruins of Roman theatres stand alongside Moorish palaces and Christian churches. Its landscape is just as varied as its history. Here, green river valleys alternate with barren hill ranges and white sandy beaches, while the famous white villages perch on the rocky peaks. The locals are immensely hospitable, so you will immediately feel welcome in any place. In Seville and Cádiz, you will experience the joie de vivre of the Spaniards and a vast number of historically highly interesting buildings.

Stages description

Day 1: Individual arrival to Sevilla

Sun-drenched Seville is the capital of the southern Spanish region of Andalusia and has become famous worldwide as the cradle of flamenco. Before you start your cycle tour through Andalusia, let yourself be carried away by the colorful hustle and bustle in the narrow streets. Seville is located directly on the banks of the Guadalquivir and numerous traces bear witness to its rich Arab past. One example is the Moorish royal palace Alcázar with its richly decorated arches and tiles. The Gothic cathedral, which houses the tomb of Columbus, is also well worth a visit. Two world exhibitions have given the city futuristic buildings and lush parks.

Day 2: Sevilla – Carmona, approx. 50 km

You ride along the Guadaira river through sunflower fields and one of the most fertile agricultural areas in Andalusia. Your destination is Carmona, which is not far away. The town is one of the oldest in Andalusia. Fascinating are the traces that Phoenicians, Carthaginians, Romans, Goths, Moors and Spaniards have left behind in the course of its 5000-year history. In the inner courtyard of the town hall, for example, there is a Roman mosaic depicting the head of Medusa.

Day 3: Carmona – Montellano, approx. 70 km

You leave Carmona, one of the most interesting small towns in Andalusia. The longest stage of the cycle tour in Andalusia is pleasant to cycle despite its many kilometers. You cycle through a fertile landscape known for its grain and olive cultivation. You will spend the night in the small town of Montellano, whose first settlements can be traced back to the Bronze Age. After a long day on the bike, enjoy a typical dish from the region: fried garlic or golden thistle.

Day 4: Montellano – Arcos de la Frontera, approx. 60 km

You cycle through the spectacular landscape of the foothills of the Sierra de Grazalema. Arcos de la Frontera, built directly on the steep cliffs, greets you from afar. This enchanting little town is the capital of the famous white villages of Andalusia. Its inhabitants also call their town the gateway to the white villages. A total of 30 of these beautiful mountain villages belong to the select circle of whitewashed houses adorned with colorful flowers. From the listed old town, you can enjoy a spectacular panorama of the valley of the River Guadalete.

Day 5: Arcos de la Frontera – Jerez de la Frontera, approx. 55 km

Rolling hills carry you further and further towards the Costa de la Luz on the Atlantic coast. Jerez de la Frontera, the overnight stop, is in stark contrast to the tranquillity you enjoyed in the previous days. You spend the night in one of the largest cities in Andalusia, the stronghold of sherry and Andalusian horse breeding. The city is also famous for its fighting bulls and flamenco. But that's not all: the old town is also an absolute eye-catcher and has numerous beautiful buildings such as the cathedral and the oldest building in the city, the Alcázar. Visit a dance performance or the Royal Andalusian Riding School!

Day 6: Jerez de la Frontera – Cádiz, approx. 65 km

You should make your first stop on this stage in the small fishing village of El Puerto de Santa María, which lies in the bay of Cádiz. The small town is known for its beautiful beach and the sherry fino produced here. Not far and you have reached the destination of your cycle tour through Andalusia: Cádiz, situated on a headland, is one of the oldest cities in Europe and was allegedly founded by Hercules himself. Climb the bell tower of the cathedral and enjoy a sweeping view of the sea.

Day 7: Individual departure

After breakfast you start your individual return journey home or extend your stay.
