Your tour

Your circular tour starts in Münster, one of the most bicycle-friendly cities in Germany. The surrounding Münsterland is rich in castles and palaces, flat to boot and equipped with excellent paths. The best conditions for getting to know the cultural riches, the delicious cuisine and the down-to-earth people on a cycle tour. A detour across the border gives you an impression of our Dutch neighbours, whose cycle paths are always eyed with envy.

Stages description

Day 1: Individual arrival in Münster

Do not set off too late, as the former Westphalian capital has a lot to offer. It is considered to be Germany's friendliest town for cyclists and is also shaped by the almost 50,000 students who live here. The centre features the town's Prinzipalmarkt, lined by elegant houses with stepped gables. You should also visit the cathedral and the castle, and go for a walk around Aasee lake.

Day 2: Münster – Schöppingen, approx. 55 km

Cycle out of Münster leisurely on quiet paths to reach Havixbeck. You should take a break here: Castle Hülsdorff informs visitors about the castle and the poet Annette von Droste-Hülshoff. The sandstone museum explains the extraction and processing of the Baumberger sandstone and a private broadcasting museum dedicates itself to the history of radio and television. The tour will take you through the place of pilgrimage Eggerode to Schöppingen, where the St. Brictius church is worth seeing.

Day 3: Schöppingen – Vreden, approx. 60 km

The first stage will take you through an attractive park and heath landscape to Ahaus. Here Germany's first faience manufactory developed, however, it only existed for four years. The Baroque castle of the Prince-Bishops is impressive. You will cycle in the direction of the Dutch border through moors, heath and meadows. You will pass the nature reserve Zwillbrocker Venn, where flamingos are at home. In Zwillbrock church the Baroque interiors have been completely preserved.

Day 4: Vreden – Bocholt, approx. 50 km

Shortly after setting off you cross the barely noticeable border to the Netherlands into the province of Gelderland. On narrow avenues and small farm trails you will be on your way to Winterswijk. In your surroundings you will find several old windmills and farms. The town of Bredevoort has distinctly medieval character and is a paradise for bookworms. By the way: Your final destination for today, the city of Bocholt, has been nominated Germany's bicycle friendliest city for the sixth time now in 2019!

Day 5: Bocholt – Coesfeld, approx. 65 km

As the name 100-castles-route already suggests, you will be visiting Castle Gemen, the magnificent water castle today. But before that you could take a refreshing break at the Pröbstinger lake. Once you have arrived in Coesfeld you can let the day come to an end over a freshly brewed beer and a hearty dinner in the Themebrewery Stephanus.

Day 6: Coesfeld – Lüdinghausen, approx. 55 km

Let yourself be woken by the church bells from the 15th century, then the cycle journey will take you over the soft ripples of the Baumberge hills, the only elevations in the Münsterland. A few kilometres further on you will reach the Dortmund-Ems Canal, which will accompany you until you reach your destination. In Seppenrade the rose garden, which houses more than 700 kinds of roses, awaits you. In Lüdinghausen a visit to Castle Vischering, which accommodates the Münsterland museum and a knight exhibition for children is worthwhile.

Day 7: Lüdinghausen – Muenster, approx. 55 km

The most impressive castle of the entire journey, Castle Nordkirchen, lies ahead of you today. It was constructed by the prince bishops of Münster, copying the Dutch model and was in the possession of Count Esterhazy for a while. The UNESCO world heritage site is often referred to as Westphalian Versailles. You will cycle back to Muenster on the 100-Castle Route, past many smaller and larger noble residences.

Day 8: Individual departure

After breakfast you start your individual return journey home or extend your stay.
